That $50 that Senator Kearns subscribed to help defray the expanses of the Labor day demonstration is proving to be an apple of discord in the ranks of the Utah Federation of Labor, and the hottest kind of a fight is on to determine whether the money should be accepted or returned. There was needing of the executive committee last evening, at which this matter was handled without gloves by both sides, and it was left to be fought to a finish at a special meeting to be finish at a special meeting to be a finish at a special meeting to be the federation hall on Thursday evening of next week. In the meantime the various unions that make up the federation will instruct their members of the executive compaignees of the executive and the history of Salt Lake when it was so difficult to secure a good store room for rent on Main street as it is just now, and rents are advancing materially as a consequence. The landlords account for the higher rents by saying that their taxes are higher, many improvements are demanded and applicants for the rooms are bidding up on each other anyhow, so that they feel justified in asking the higher rents.

A firm last week bought a lease on a morth of the eight Odd Fellows there is to so, the Elks has quite that pervades at prayer meetings must be observed all during carnival week or there may be trouble of the kind that finds its way into court and remanded and applicants for the rooms are bidding up on each other anyhow, so that they feel justified in asking the higher rents.

ly for ourselves. It is beneficial to the city, to a large extent, and being so, I do not understand why any citizens should try to put a damper on it. We have had the convenience of the public in mind from the very scart. Some have an idea that we are going to block the sidewalks, but that is just as untrue as the claim that the proceedings witnin the carnival enclosure will esturb the High school. There is nothing to it."

Committee Meets.

President Newman called a meeting of the committee Meets.

President Newman called a meeting of the committee on teachers and school work for 4 o'clock in the afterneon at Mr. Geoghegan's office. The alarm sounded, a quorum of the committee assembled and discussed the question.

How to choke off the noise from the carnival festivities was the problem. With visions of circuses, parades, sideshows and other strenuous attractions, the committee viewed with alarm the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the probable effect on the High school students while the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the carnival feature for the strenuous attractions, the collection of the defendants from the carnival feature for the school of the defendants from the carnival feature for the school of the defendants from the carnival feature for the school of the carnival feature for the matter was acquiesced in by the trial

CUPID WON OUT.—On Tuesday John Henry Wiechert of Murray applied to the county clerk's office for a permit to wed Miss Minnie Riley of Ogden, but the license was refused because the groom was only 20 years of age. Yesterday the young orphan boy and his bride appeared again for the license, and William C. Wiechert, brother of the groom, making oath that he is the junior's guardian and giving his consent to the marriage, the barriers were taken down and the permit was insued.
